In the death of A. B. Pike of North Craftsbury there is removed a hotel man whose personality made the Orleans House for many years a place sought out by travelers.

Three heretofore perfectly docile bulls recently attacked persons in this part of Vermont, in each case inflicting terrible injuries to the victim. It is evident that these animals can never be trusted and much caution must be exercised in handling them.

The Hardwick Gazette complains about the tour map marking of the highways through that place, and admits it has some excellent roads. When every Vermont newspaper will present the good side of its highways instead of emphasizing the bad we shall have more recognition.

We approve the Hartness plan to the extent that we are perfectly willing the Governor should try it by starting up things in Springfield whenever he sees fit—or anywhere else where they are shut down.—Rutland Herald.

Note the absence of the J. & L. page, or more, in the Reporter for the past few months, the cutting down in the size of the Springfield contemporary and its going back to ordinary newspaper stock from the fine book stock is used during the campaign and before. Getting back to normalcy, as it were.

Twelve deaths are said to be accredited to automobile accidents in Vermont thus far this year. The toll is too great and yet it is ventured that per mile per person traveled the list is not greater than other modes of travel. Until one counts the cars and number of persons in a car, passing a given point during a given period, it is little realized the number of persons traveling by automobile.

This paper understands the management of the Orleans County Fair has taken steps to make its 1921 exhibit free from those gambling devices which caused so much comment last year. This is in line with the stand taken by the State fair and other Vermont fairs and will find favor with a great majority of the people. Gambling, in one form and another, is one of the curses of the generation and every possible means of stamping it out ought to be taken.

The depression has hit the farmer and hit him hard. Many Canadians, who have come to this country in the past few years and paid good prices for farms, carrying large deferred payment agreements, now find themselves in very trying positions. Advice in such circumstances is not always in good order, but these men must hold their courage. National legislation will help the situation to some extent, the natural law of supply and demand will soon bring better times and creditors must use patience and discretion. There are already signs of a strong turning tide.

It is pleasing to know that East Charleston is to "come back" to some extent at least following its devastating fire. The Stanstead Journal says: "It is surprising how some people and communities will rise from disaster, no handicap being too great to overcome. The village of East Charleston has really found its pace since its terrible fire; it serves as a hobble to the pacing horse, to steady it down and make possible a great endeavor. Even 'Echo Inn' has come back on the shores of Echo pond. Mr. and Mrs. Gallup are the same good hosts and Mrs. Gallup can still cook and serve. The band was not consumed by fire and they announce a concert one evening each week throughout the summer. Talk of making a stepping stone of disaster; here is real disaster and real stepping up."

Craftsbury village has taken hold of the fire protection question, appointed committees to investigate and report, and will undoubtedly perfect some plan whereby the fire hazard in that place will be lessened. This is splendid work. With several efficient chemical fire-fighting apparatuses now on the market, any community which will provide itself with effective means of fighting fire. A characteristic remark was made to the writer by a resident of a small village when asked if his place was making any move toward fire protection, when he said, "No, but they ought to." "They," indeed! It is always thus. Let George do it. And in the meantime suffer risk of property, life and community existence.

The Stanstead Journal has discovered Barton, as will be seen by an editorial clipping from that paper printed in this issue. But there are a lot of people living right in Barton who have not yet discovered the place. And this thing is true about any town. Besides its municipal electric and water systems, Barton has a cooperatively owned hotel which is gaining a wide reputation for its splendid service under G. Ira Lincoln, manager. Barton has a new golf course which is talked about for miles both north and south. Barton has a public bathing beach on Crystal lake, the best bathing beach in northeastern Vermont. Barton has a men's club which is functioning to the benefit of the entire community and a Woman's club which has made a splendid start toward giving the village an appropriate library building. Barton has a baseball team, mostly made up of real home men. Barton has a high school which ranks among the very best and a school building without an equal in a wide area. Barton has a good band. Barton has a public spirit, unity of purpose, a community understanding which few towns enjoy. These things are all brought about of course, by men of vision who can lay aside personal interests for a common good. For an example of public spirit witness the success of the recent Barton Historical pageant, possible only because of complete cooperation of all the people and good weather. Watch Barton.

PRESS CLIPPINGS

Wants Practically Instead of Industrial Dreams.

(Waterbury Record)

The man who seeks office today or has any idea of it at some future date is a winning thought by sympathizing with the voters on the tax burden. Some real "down to the soil" argument will have to be used in order to convince. Taxation ideas will without doubt strike the voters a little more favorably than industrial, idealistic campaign flashes.

The High Spots in Baseball.

(Barre Times)

Baseball is hitting the high spots in northern Vermont when a crowd of 2,000 people will turn out to see a game, as they did at Newport one day recently when St. Johnsbury sent up a team fast enough to beat the border city team, which, by the way, is made up in part of varsity players from Dartmouth college. In fact, the game is going at such a fast pace that there is danger of repetition of disastrous financial results such as the old Northern league experienced when it began to supplement its already highly paid college men with vacationists from the major leagues. The St. Johnsbury team, which represented Philadelphia in the American league. The promoters cannot expect to have a crowd of 2,000 every day, rain or shine; and a crowd of such ample proportions must be necessary to make the game both ends meet. However, that's the promoters' lookout; they probably know their business. In the meantime the fans better enjoy what's set before them, for it may not last long.

Barton's Electric and Water System.

(Stanstead, P. Q. Journal)

The electric plant of Barton village, the generating units being located on the Clyde River falls at West Charleston, serves a large area of Orleans county. We are surprised to learn that this plant supplies Barton village, Orleans, Glover, West Glover, Albany, Irasburg, Coventry, Evansville, Brownington Center and Westmore. The financial condition shows a very small indebtedness. Six thousand dollars of the debt was retired the past year and power is being sold as low as one cent per K-watt. Doubtless this particular publicly owned utility will pay the up-keep of Barton village. This village has also an ideal water supply. May pond, three and one-half miles away and about 500 feet above the village level, is its source of supply, and today lawns and gardens can have all they require. Up to the present no restrictions have been placed upon its use, and the annual rate is far below any neighboring village. While Barton is certainly favored by natural physical conditions, it must have citizens with a vision. Some man took a long look ahead when about 25 years ago he purchased Clyde River falls at West Charleston for $500, making possible the comfort to so many homes and business places.

Legion Hospital of the Vail Estate.

(St. Johnsbury Caledonian)

The executive committee of the State Department of the American Legion has been to Lyndon Center to look over the residence of the late Theodore N. Vail, which has been offered to the Legion for a hospital for the care of the boys who need immediate attention and who are not now in suitable places and for men who have seen service and received the injuries they have in their devotion to country.

The members of the commission were much impressed with the Vail home which could be made very easily into an ideal institution for this purpose.

This property is most favorably located, both in appointment and location. It is accessible. The unexcelled view from its spacious grounds of mountain and valley and its abundant supply of pure spring water which all go to make it a place where convalescent soldiers could be nursed back to health under most favorable surroundings.

We think the Legion would make no mistake in locating their hospital at the Vail homestead on Speedwell Farms.

Nearby Automobile Route.

(Hardwick Gazette)

The Gazette is not fully informed what the basis for prominence on the automobile routing maps is, but it does know that in several instances recently, automobilists from out of the state have informed us and the garages here that they received a wrong impression about the condition of the main highways through Hardwick to St. Johnsbury and from Newport via Craftsbury, Hardwick, Woodbury and East Calais to Montpelier, by noting only inferior markings on these highways upon the maps, against the prominent marking of other routes and trail routes, when in fact, the route from Burlington through Hardwick, (the Ethan Allen trail) to the White Mountains and the Atlantic coast is the most direct, the best in road condition and has a resource of Vermont scenery pleasing to the tourist. The road from Newport to the State Capitol is also the most direct line and there are few roads in any better condition in the state or around the country. The whole country is through nice farming districts, besides streams and lakes, through woods, and is attractive in other features. In view of this false information, tourists get from the light markings on the tourist maps in the green book, blue book, and other sources, the Gazette believes the State Publicity Department should take up the matter and as a suggestion, see that all main or state highways are given the same prominence on all maps. The trails could be designated by their names, but make the lines equal.

Money Credit for Farmers.

Washington (D. C.) Herald

All banks are known as commercial banks, or banks of commerce. Until Senator Knute Nelson secured the change, banks were not allowed to loan on mortgage security. Now what factor of land financing and credit is taken over by the Federal and Bank systems and the capitalist and over-supervised form of relief. Commercial banks, as banks of deposit, are not organized to give and should not give over thirty to ninety days' credit. They provide for commerce and industry with their frequent turnovers.

They do not and cannot provide for agriculture with its annual turnovers nor can they provide for agricultural development which in industry is met by the system of stocks and bonds. The only recourse of the farmer has been through what help the banks strained themselves to give him and through personal credits. Burying with possession, but not ownership; chattel mortgages, store accounts and like devices have been his recourse. They are, and by their nature, must be merely makeshifts. The congressman and the capitalist "class" do not know and so cannot realize the fundamental conditions of agriculture. Its primary need is not consumptive, but productive credit. Consumptive credit meets a temporary condition. It is for emergency. It can always be gotten through some way. Productive credit is a permanent one upon which rests the expansion and development of agriculture, our one basic industry. The source of the food supply and of the major increase of primary wealth. It is not the Norris bill, but the McNary-Kenyon bill which always has been the basis of agriculture needs and the permanent financial relief can come in the form of adequate productive credits.

Nor is this measure added only in the South and Middle West states. It is in the East and in the West, and in the district of Columbia. They would all experience a revival in agriculture which they so much need. The great handicap here, as West and South is credit to supply those things needed to make a bare land yield of its wealth. It is not a technical nor a moral, but a completely national legislation. It is also a conservative and so the opposite of paternal.

Two Prominent Vermonters Dead.

Judge Seneca Haselton, United States minister to Venezuela in the administration of President Cleveland, and for 13 years justice of the Vermont Supreme court, died suddenly at his home in Burlington Thursday. He was 73 years of age. Seneca Haselton was born in Westford, February 26, 1848, the son of the Rev. Amos and Amelia (Frink) Haselton. His early education was obtained in the public schools of Jericho and Underhill and at the academies of Underhill and Barre. He entered the University of Vermont, from which he received the degree of A. B., with high honors, in 1871, and the degree of A. M. in 1874. In 1875 he received the degree of LL. B. from the University of Michigan; and from the University of Vermont conferred upon him the degree of LL. B. in 1909.

Alexander Ironside, known nationally in labor organizations, died at his home in Barre Thursday after several months' illness with lung trouble. He was a granite cutter, having learned his trade in Scotland. He was for several years national secretary of the Quarry Workers' International union, and was prominent in the steel strike at Youngstown, Pa., last year. He was for 18 years secretary of the Vermont branch of the American Federation of Labor, a member of the district draft board during the war and at one time a member of the board of arbitration and conciliation. Mr. Ironside had always been prominent when the legislature was in session and he succeeded in amending laws to give more comfort to women and children employed in industries. He is survived by his wife and six children.

Here's Marvelous Diet Dish. The great national dish of Korea is cooked. To make it, you plunge a large lump of ice into a bowl partly filled with steaming vermicelli of the endless variety. Over this you pour a portion of hot beef stew. The ice cools the beef fat into little islands of grease, and you never know whether the portion dangling from the end of your chopsticks will be icy cold or burning hot. The vermicelli, which is very tough, is to be lifted to the mouth with the chopsticks. Keeping a firm hold on it with the tips of the teeth, you slip the chopsticks down to lift again and take up the slack by sucking.

A Real Optimist.

The other day we heard of a real optimist—a woman who stood watching her house burn down in a community with no fire protection and weak water pressure. She remarked: "Well, anyhow, I'm glad I went to the movies yesterday instead of washing my windows."

Travellers Take Notice

Superintendent Ahern of the B. & M. R. R., has published the following bulletin which should be of interest to the travelling public.

AGENTS, OPERATORS, ENGINEMEN, TRAINMEN AND CROSSING WATCHMEN
On account of the fatal accidents at highway crossings that have occurred within the past month. We deem it of the utmost importance, for the safety of the travelling public, and our employees, especially at highway crossings where autos are taking chances and if struck by train likely to derail the train, that you report to me by wire from first station the number of and state where registered, of any automobile noticed racing with the train, or attempting to make crossing without proper amount of time to do so in safety, or where car passes over crossing at high speed and driver not looking to see if train is approaching. We must take steps to discourage this increasing carelessness on the part of automobile and truck drivers.

C. L. Stuart of Lyndonville, president of the Vermont State Bankers Association, offers special cash prizes of $5.00 each to the boy and girl who proves themselves the best individual demonstrators in the club team contest from the various counties in the state at the annual State fair, White River Junction, October 3 to 6.

Who Controls Back of Seat? "Say, take your coat off of my new hat!"

"My coat isn't on your hat. And if it is, you can just take your hat away. My coat's going to stay where it is!"

"You can put your coat on your lap. I'll call the usher."

That's the way the argument began between the two women in the movie theatre. The woman in front had dropped her coat over the back of her seat. The woman in back objected, because she had "parked" her new spring hat there.

But the question, who owns the back of the seat—the person who sits in the seat or the one behind—was left unsettled, because the owner of the coat moved to another seat.
